

Joey is a boy who has ADHD ^{which} ~~with~~ it makes him very hyperactive ^{some meaning as 'hyperactive' - don't need to repeat} and makes him go crazy if he does something fun or eat ^{too} ~~to~~ much sugar. Joey tries his best on everything but fails to do ^{them} ~~everything~~ right and correct. But after being hyperactive, some people get hurt or he hurts himself (like Maria) ~~who was a girl who got harassed at by Joey.~~

Joey goes to ^a ~~his~~ Special School called "Special ed". ^{journey to special ed,} During that ~~in the~~ bus Joey ^{controlled} ~~self~~ ^{despite} ~~himself~~ ~~blame~~. ^{the fact that} The bus driver called him a foster kid. But he ^{was okay} ~~said~~ knew the bus driver didn't mean it and ~~was~~ with it.

Joey ^{knew} ~~knows~~ he ^{wanted} ~~wants~~ to do the right thing but ^{stop repeating 'thing' without telling us what the 'thing' is.} ~~keeps~~ ^{kept} ending the wrong thing. As the story moves on, Joey develops ~~and~~ ^{and} being a better self, as he went to the Special ed ^{and} ~~he~~ made a friend called Charlie. Joey ^{knew} ~~if~~ he did well, his mom ^{would} ~~said~~ ^{him} ~~he~~ will get a dog.

This book teaches a valuable lesson: to learn from your mistakes, ~~and~~ ^{become your} ~~be~~ a better self, and ~~definitely~~ ^{definitely} try your best ~~and~~ ^{to} learn more about life.

In conclusion, ~~people agree that people~~ ^{redundancy.} ~~make~~ ^{don't need to repeat 'people' twice in 1 sentence.} so much mistakes that ~~people~~ ^{they} ~~don't~~ ^{know} ~~when they~~ ^{what} ~~make~~ ^{they make} mistakes. People always have to learn from anything they do wrong and ~~you~~ ^{stop using personal pronouns.} have to develop.
